Examples

Situation 1: The person files the form after the filing deadline but before the given day.

The person must pay an amount equal to the interest (calculated at the prescribed federal and provincial rates) on the deduction claimed. The interest is calculated for the period:

- beginning on the day on which he or she was required to file the form; and
- ending on the day on which he or she files the form.

Example 1

The person files quarterly returns, his or her reporting period is from April 1, 2017, to June 30, 2017, and the filing deadline for the GST/HST and QST return is July 31, 2017. During the reporting period, the person paid or credited a rebate and claimed a deduction in his or her return. The person is required to file this form by July 31, 2017, but he or she files it on December 15, 2017.

The amount of the GST/HST adjustment is equal to the interest (calculated at the prescribed federal rate) on the deduction claimed. The interest is calculated for the period:

- beginning on July 31, 2017 (the day on which the person was required to file the form); and
- ending on December 15, 2017 (the day on which the person filed the form).

The amount of the QST adjustment is equal to the interest (calculated at the prescribed provincial rate) on the deduction claimed. The interest is calculated for the same period as above.

Situation 2: The person files the form after the filing deadline and after the given day.

The person must repay an amount equal to the deduction claimed and also pay an amount equal to the interest (calculated at the prescribed federal and provincial rates) on the deduction claimed. The interest is calculated for the period:

- beginning on the day on which the person was required to file the form; and
- ending on the filing deadline for the return for the reporting period that includes the given day.

Example 2

The person files quarterly returns, his or her reporting period is from April 1, 2017, to June 30, 2017, and the filing deadline for the GST/HST and QST return is July 31, 2017. During the reporting period, the person paid or credited a rebate and claimed a deduction in his or her return. The filing deadline for this form is July 31, 2017. The person's registers are audited in July 2018 and the person receives a formal demand ordering him or her to file the required information by August 4, 2018.

You must first determine the given day. In this case, it is the earliest of the following dates: August 1, 2021, or August 4, 2018. The given day is therefore August 4, 2018.

The amount of the GST/HST adjustment is equal to the amount of the deduction claimed plus interest (calculated at the prescribed federal rate) on the deduction claimed. The interest is calculated for the period:

- beginning on July 31, 2017 (the day on which the person was required to file the form); and
- ending on the filing deadline for the return for the reporting period that includes August 4, 2018.

The amount of the QST adjustment is equal to the amount of the deduction claimed plus interest (calculated at the prescribed provincial rate) on the deduction claimed. The interest is calculated for the same period as above.

1. The filing deadline for this form is the filing deadline for the GST/HST and QST return. For example, if the person files monthly returns and his or her reporting period is from June 1 to June 30, the filing deadline for both the return and this form is July 31.

2. The given day is the earliest of the following dates:

- the day four years after the filing deadline for the return in which the person claimed the deduction;
- the day stipulated in the formal demand ordering the person to file the information.

3. The prescribed federal interest rate is available online at canada.ca/taxes and the prescribed provincial interest rate is available at revenuquebec.ca.
